DomainsBot is the only other domain name suggestion API.

They come up with useful suggestions sometimes, but they re usually too long, not creative, and a bit awkward.

They play it very safe. They simply prepend/append common words. This usually makes the domain too long and too specific!

We come up with useful suggestions every time!

It's actually very difficult to generate meaningful phrases which are not awkward or offensive. Using synonyms, it's easy to accidentally come up with cringe--worthy phrases. That won't happen with us. We use Natural Language Processing (AI).

We filter out all negative connotations. So, we're able to be creative and innovative, but also reliable and positive.

Our suggestions are getting better every day! Please contact us to discuss next steps. New features and developments coming soon.

Also try our wordio.co

It contains 300,000 words and short phrases. Find out meta data like acronyms, abbreviations, roots, parts-of-speech, synonyms, and sentiment analysis rating.

We use this to break domain names into individual words, and decide which have positive/negative connotations.

Also part of this database are related TLDs, sorted by relevance.

Our sentiment-analysis is currently more accurate than IBM or Microsoft, but only for individual words. This is actually very useful for domain names.
